Chips

Roses are red, violets are blue, but on Pledge Day it's more than one poor man can do to keep them straight. And there is nothing like a bunch of flowers to make a girl snooty. Just as though they don't grow in every garden.

We're of the opinion that sorority rushing should be classified with sports. We should like to see official recognition given for some of the records that are hung up about here for non-sleeping.

Speaking of sports, there's another thing that ought to come under that category—practice for the Troubadour choruses. Anyone who is having trouble with a lack of appetite these days should drop around and get the lowdown on some really first-class setting-up exercises.

Speaking of sports again, we feel inspired to say at this time that Rome wasn't built in a day. We have never heard of a good football team that was either. Let's see—there are still three days before this C. U. game though. Perhaps the ditches will be dug by then.

We hear they're charging a dollar for the C. U. game. They couldn't want the money to buy a new team for the Navy game. Maybe it's to buy pink quilts for the athletes' beds.

The Student Council is giving a rally this Thursday night. See you all there—you, and your fraternity brothers, your sweethearts, uncles, aunts, and nephews. The C. U. game is a tradition, and there is no better way of making it a happy tradition than getting all kinds of pep and enthusiasm to back the team. Are you going to be there? You are.

The Hatchet at last comes into a class with the New York Times. It has a man for society editor. Did we say a man? We meant Frank Westbrook.

G. W. is sinking to the depths of popular advertising — a colored man sandwiched between two blatant advertisements of the women's athletic rally in the gym was seen walking up and down G Street last Monday. That would have been a good job for a football player.

The Colonial Review—rather too dignified a name for the literary supplement of The Hatchet—but not so bad otherwise, appears for the first time. Yes, it was once the Wig, and it still prints stories that can't get into Harper's or the American Mercury, and poetry composed by love-sick calves.

The University is forehanded. They've already bought their Christmas trees, and planted them beside Corcoran Hall to keep them fresh.

This business of profs not giving unlimited cuts to people on the honor roll needs some publicity. Now since Dick Rollo is impartial since he's not on the honor roll, he ought to make a good advocate for these maligned students. Why, what's the use in getting A's when you get no reward for them—no Phi Beta Kappa, no unlimited cuts—you might as well just squeeze through as Jerry Sickler and we do.

DICK ROLLO.

Tickets For C. U. Game

Student activity tickets will not be honored at the gate for the C. U.-G. W. game, but by presenting a student activity card a special student ticket can be purchased for one dollar. The regular price is one dollar and a half.

These tickets may be secured at Spalding's, at the ball park, and in the Bursar's office before and at game time. Student activity cards and a dollar gets a dollar and a half ticket.

Holders of Courtesy Cards and Season Alumni tickets must get their reservations without cost through the Men's Athletic Department. Call National 6462 or National 6366, or exchange same at the courtesy gate Friday night. Every one must have a ticket.

1930 DEBATING SEASON OPENS AGAINST SCOTS

Large Crowd Attends Lively Contest; No Decision Is Rendered

Enlivened by frequent flashes of wit, and interspersed with a number of Scotch jokes fresh from their native heath, a debate upon the true function of university education was held at the University Thursday night, when George Washington debaters met a visiting team representing the universities of Scotland.

Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of the University, presided at the debate, the question of which was, "Resolved, That the primary function of a university is to advance the general knowledge of mankind rather than to supply cultural or vocational training."

A crowd which filled the assembly room in Corcoran Hall was regaled with the sight of what, in Scotland, constitutes full dress, a habit bearing mute testimony to the fact that the Scot, whatever his reputation, is no niggard in the matter of color. The long-suppressed instinct of the soberly-arrayed American male found spontaneous expression in the salvo of applause which greeted the appearance of scarlet kilts.

Culture is "Lukewarm"

Bedight in the brilliant plaid of his clan, Norman Alexander Bruce Wilson, of St. Andrews University, opened the debate for the affirmative. After paying his compliments to America which, he said, the visitors had found "rather better than we had expected," Wilson launched into an indictment of the present system of university education. Under this system, he declared, culture, while widespread, is "lukewarm." The universities, he said, were classically teaching institutions, and the best minds have deserted them because of the great burden of teaching which has been thrust upon the faculty.

Teaching is sapping energy which should be given to research. The "teaching mania," likewise is having a bad effect upon the student because it is purely a passive process. Through machine-made curricula, originality and individuality in the student are being stifled. Students are being taught, but they are not being taught to think, he declared. He advocated the abandonment of education for the masses, and the substitution of a system of research which would encourage original and creative thinking.

Deplores Stale Lectures

Opening the argument for George Washington, Andrew Howard asserted that the phenomenal growth of the universities has been brought about by the desire and need of the people for definite training which will fit them for life. As proof of the fact that research is no longer the exclusive nor primary function of the university, he pointed to the great amount of research which is being carried on in governmental and industrial laboratories.

County Fair Will Be Held By Y. W. C. A. On Dec. 6

That the annual County Fair will be held December 6 was decided at the first cabinet meeting of the Y. W. C. A. Letters have been sent to all fraternities in order that no other function will be planned for this night.

Dancing in C. H. 1 and booths in the hall will be the features of the program; prizes will be given for the most popular and the most attractive booths. Sororities having the highest scholarship rating will be given the first choice in the arrangement of booths. The fair is in the hands of Mary Weaver and Helen Swick.

Further plans will be discussed at the next council meeting, to be held Thursday, November 24.

Chess Club Wants Members

The Chess Club, one of the newer organizations on the George Washington campus, is conducting a drive for members. Membership is open not only to the students of the University, but to any of the faculty who may care to participate in this activity.

The club will hold a meeting tomorrow, Thursday, at 7:30 p. m. in Room 15 of Corcoran Hall. Officers will be elected at this meeting to serve for the coming year. Plans will be discussed for a tournament to be held in the near future to determine the members of the team. Negotiations are under way to schedule tournaments with teams representing several other universities. Anyone interested is urged to attend the meeting to be held tomorrow night.

Victory Dance

There will be a victory dance Friday night, immediately after the football game with Catholic University, in C. H. 1, sponsored by the Colonial Club. Subscription, one dollar, couple or stag.

MEN'S GLEE CLUB ROSTER SELECTED

Choice Based On Work of Men At Rehearsals and On Voice Trials

Dr. Robert Howe Harmon, director of The George Washington University Men's Glee Club, has selected a group of 40 men from the large number of applicants for positions in the club, who will sing with the organization this year. The director based his choice on the work of the men at rehearsals and on their showing in a series of voice trials held during the rehearsals. The successful candidates are:

First tenors: Buckingham, E. C. Cooper, Kimble, Minor, Powell, Taylor, and Vernon.

Second tenors: Beattie, Burton, Coe, Greist, Hill, Perry, Roth, Wells, and Worthy.

Baritones: Brown, C. E. Cooper, Cummings, Cushman, Detwiler, Jarvis, May, Morgan, Nestor, Paulson, Scrivener, Stimson, and Weltzel.

Basses: Amos, Bloom, Cook, Crocker, Hix, Hughes, Jones, E. Smith, Smoot, H. E. Stanton, and Stepler.

From the group above 30 men will be selected to represent the University in the coming intercollegiate glee club contest, which will be held in Carnegie Hall, New York City, in March, 1931. At the last rehearsal Dr. Harmon announced to the unsuccessful candidates that their failure to make the grade did not necessarily indicate lack of merit as to singing ability, and they were told to report for tryouts at the beginning of next season.

Debaters Elect Officers And Outline Year's Plans

Doering Named President; Prohibition Will Be First Subject

The Columbian Debating Society of George Washington University held its first fall meeting Friday, in Corcoran Hall 15. Election of officers, reorganization, and construction of an outline for future programs were the important events of the evening. Carroll J. Doering of Phi Sigma Kappa and Norman R. Hagen were elected to fill the offices of president and first vice president, respectively. Other offices will be filled at the next meeting.

The first debate will be on the popular, and at the present time, important question, "Resolved, That the Eighteenth Amendment should be repealed." Ralph Morgali and Norman R. Hagen, two very able debaters who have obtained considerable distinction on the campus as forensic artists, will support the affirmative. Opposed to them will be Richard C. Marks and James Ronald, both of whom are advanced students in Columbian College's debate classes. The actual date of this intellectual combat has not been determined, as sufficient time must be allowed for the debaters to gather and organize their material. The debate is tentatively scheduled for the first week of December.

In keeping with the rapid expansion of the University as a whole, the members of Columbian Debating Society are drawing up plans which will involve the presentation of a series of serious, well-organized, and important debates. Attempts are being made to interest debating squads of other educational institutions to hold a number of city-wide debates. Any member of this University who is interested in debating or discussing the problems confronting college students today is requested to get in touch with any of the members of the society or to visit the meetings which are held every Friday in Corcoran Hall 15.

Pep Rally For C. U. Game Thursday Night

A big pep rally will be held in Corcoran Hall 10, Thursday night at eight, under the auspices of the Student Council. The team will be there. Jerry Sickler will lead the cheering. The Glee Club will sing the George Washington songs. Come and get in the spirit for the game Friday with Catholic University, G. W.'s traditional rival. Show the team that you are behind them!

M'KINLEY CHOICE FOR TROUBADOUR MUSICAL COMEDY

"Good Gracious Godfrey" To Be Given At High School Auditorium Dec. 11, 12, 13

"Good Gracious Godfrey" has been chosen as the name for the annual production of the Troubadours, George Washington's student musical comedy organization. The show will be presented at the new McKinley High School auditorium, Second and T Streets N. E., on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday nights, December 11, 12 and 13.

The business manager has announced that arrangements for the sale of tickets have not yet been completed, but announcement will be made in a future edition of The Hatchet.

Cast Now Rehearsing

The members of the cast are now rehearsing under the direction of Dennis Connell, who has successfully directed every production staged by the Troubadour organization. Henry Nestor, who played a minor role in last year's "Gyped in Egypt," has the male lead, and Mary Whelchel, a freshman, who played an important part in dramatics while at Western High School, plays opposite him. Marjorie Mitchell plays the part of the soubrette, and is expected to be one of the hits of the show.

Other members of the cast are Wilhelmina Gude, the intellectual girl; Bill Philips, the detective; Paul Wrangle, the German doctor; Jane Wilson, the villainess; Albert Perry, the villain; Ada Green, a maiden aunt, and Joe Danzansky, the Englishman.

"Good Gracious Godfrey" is said to have an interesting plot, and there is fast moving action with good comedy relief. The students who are taking part in the show are all well fitted for the portrayal of their characters.

Choruses Definitely Chosen

The dancing director has definitely announced the names of those who are to appear in the three chcruses. Margaret Maxwell, Margaret Anderson, Virginia Plugge, Margaret Mays, Marjorie Moorman, Bernice Wall, Claire Beckham, Virginia Hawkins, Kitty Boykin, Betty Reynolds, Florence Jacobs, Shirley Graff, Mary Hearn, Dorothy Hefflebower, Marjorie Montgomery, Edith Coombes, Evelyn Iverson, Sylvia Solomon, Winnie Beall, Janie Allen, Vivian Ward, Amber Youngblood, Betty Rose, Evelyn Schweizer, Marguerite Thomas, Inez Ingham, Janice Burroughs, and Christine Spignu', who is assistant dancing director.

The costume director, Katherine Boykin, has commenced work on the costumes for the production, and several assistants are needed. Anyone who is interested, and willing to work, can make application to Kitty Boykin.

Interfrat Pledge Group Completes Dance Plans; Seeks Amateur Actors

The interfraternity pledge council at its weekly meeting at the Kappa Alpha house Sunday morning completed plans for its formal dance, December 10th, at the Shoreham Hotel. Jarboe's Nighthawks have been engaged to play, so the best of music may be expected. Favors have been chosen, but their nature is being withheld until the night of the dance.

The committee also plans to recruit amateur performers from among the pledges for the presentation of several skits to enliven the program.

President Cloyd Heck Marvin has received an invitation and is expected to be present with several other officers and members of the faculty.

A committee consisting of delegates Blackistone, Van Demark, and Potter was appointed by President Gouldin to formulate a constitution and by-laws for the guidance of future councils. The benefits of the council, in establishing acquaintances among the pledges of the fraternities in the council have become so apparent that the members wish to assure its continuance.

The next meeting of the council will be Sunday morning at the Theta Upsilon Omega house.

Notice!

There will be a meeting of the entire business staff of The Hatchet on Thursday night, November 20, at 7:30. This is important.

Business Manager.

WOMEN HONORED BY JOURNALISTS

Eight Prospective Initiates Attend Banquet of Honorary Fraternity

Eight prospective initiates were honored by Gamma Eta Zeta, women's honorary journalistic fraternity, at the annual banquet held Friday night, November 14, at the Dodge Hotel cottage.

Ruth Bell, Elizabeth Bunten, Maude Hudson, Ruth Markwood, Edith Norris, Verna Parsons, Harriette Rissler, and Dorothy Ruth were those who won recognition by Gamma Eta Zeta for their work in journalistic fields.

"Twice Told Tales," was the subject of a speech by Professor Kayser, while Professor Smith spoke on "Realism for a Change." Professor Bement, executive officer of publications, talked on a number of things of interest to the group.

Dorothy Albert Presides

In the absence of Betsy Booth, president of the organization, Dorothy Albert filled the role of toastmistress.

Outstanding work on The Wig was responsible for Ruth Bell's election.

When The Hatchet and The Ghost amalgamated their interests Betty Bunten became a member of the board of editors as chief of the Ghost section. In the past she served as a board member on the G. W. Ghost, and was chief artist of that publication. In addition she was a member of the Cherry Tree staff, and represented The Ghost on the Publications Council last year.

As a member of the board of editors of The Cherry Tree and as associate editor on The Hatchet, Maude Hudson was honored by Gamma Eta Zeta. She was formerly society editor of The Hatchet and a reporter. On The Cherry Tree she was sorority editor and assistant organizations editor.

Two Fields of Action

League of Nations To Sponsor Essay Contest

Professor Johnstone of G. W. Faculty In Charge of Contest Locally

The League of Nations Association has announced that it will conduct a national essay contest for college students. The prize will be awarded for the best student-written thesis on one of seven approved subjects, covering the field of the League of Nations and its work.

The basis for judging will be the student's knowledge of the subject, organization of material, style, and the judgment shown in preparation. The winner will be awarded a trip to Europe, with a stay in Geneva to give him an opportunity to study the League of Nations at work.

Professor Johnstone, of the political science department of the University, is in charge of the contest locally, and the necessary registration forms and information as to topics and material may be obtained from him.

Due to the large number of students at George Washington who are interested in the work of international relations, it is expected that George Washington will be well represented in the contest.

Drama Club Meets Tonight; Two Plays to Be Presented

The George Washington University Drama Club will meet tonight in Corcoran Hall 29 at 7:30. At least two one-act plays will be presented, the constitution read, and reports heard.

At the last meeting, held November 5, Professor Dorey, instructor of dramatization at G. W. U., spoke on "The Aims and Ambitions of the George Washington University Drama Club." His talk was met with the silent applause of an impressed audience. Professor Dorey is expected to address the club often during the year.

Phyllis Mills, president of the club, predicts a successful year, and urges all those interested in any phase of the drama to attend this meeting.

VARSITY TO MEET C. U. FOR ANNUAL GRIDIRON CLASSIC

Game To Be Played On Neutral Field; Rivalry of Teams Long Standing

Griffith Stadium will be the objective of thousands of George Washington students and alumni on Friday night, who will storm the Seventh Street ball park with the hope of seeing a G. W. football team triumph over its traditional rival, Catholic University, for the first time since 1924. Not until the final whistle blows will either side be able to count a victory, however, as past performances have indicated that each team has risen to unprecedented power in the annual struggle.

For those over-optimistic G. W. backers, Coach James E. Pixlee has sounded a warning. While expressing the belief that his team could beat C. U., their current record on paper expresses this idea none too certainly. For those who would have G. W. walking all over its rival, Pixlee has formulated a scientific chart which appears on page 3 of this issue, showing that this year's record leaves his team no better than Catholic University's.

While G. W.'s record of three victories, three defeats and a tie is apparently better than C. U.'s season of only one victory as against seven setbacks, Pixlee points out that the Brooklanders have fought opponents of a higher caliber than his Colonials—Holy Cross, Boston College and Duquesne, all being ranked by the Buff and Blue mentor as superior to any of the teams met by George Washington this year. Furthermore, C. U. has shown a constant improvement from the beginning of the season, holding three major elevens to lower and lower scores. On the other hand, none of G. W.'s foes have been ranked as "Class A" by Pixlee, while its three victims have been placed as low as "Class C."

Injuries Handicap Team

Unless unlooked for improvements occur in the next few days, G. W. will enter the battle severely handicapped. Injuries last week at Albright forced Joe Carter, Billy Wells, and Lee Carlin, all backfield aces, out of the game, and only Wells has been able to get around the past few days. Carter dislocated a shoulder at Reading but is being treated daily in the hope of being able to play. Carlin suffered another ankle injury which sent him to the sidelines, while Wells received a severely-wrenched neck.

While their record has been better than recent Colonial elevens, the 1930 aggregation will have a chance to prove itself superior to the famous "Iron Men" of 1927, in the crucial C. U. game. At present, the "Iron Men" still hold the upper hand, having won all but one game up to Thanksgiving,

Baptist Union to Review Atlanta Student Meeting

A miniature Atlanta conference will be the feature of the November meeting of the Baptist Student Union to be held next Monday at 8:15 P. M. in Waddell Hall, 715 8th Street N. W.

Each G. W. U. student who attended the Atlanta meeting will present a five-minute summary of a message presented by some outstanding conference speaker. Some of the speeches to be given are those of Dr. John Lake of China, Hon. Pat Neff of Texas and Miss Ethel McConnell, a Baptist student secretary.

Bruce Fowler, local B. S. U. president, will conduct the conference. A social hour will follow the general meeting. All interested students and faculty members are invited.

DEPENDABILITY

duties, performing them in a whole-hearted manner to the best of one's ability. How much that quality is needed in the world today! Not only in the world in general, but on this campus in particular. Few students realize the enormous amount of work which goes on in the University each week—clubs, fraternities, sororities, organizations and undertakings of every description. The successful management of these activities demands not only capable officers, but dependable subordinates, willing to take responsibility and to carry out duties without hesitation or urging. The possession of even one such lieutenant is a blessing to the officers of any organization.

Where does it lead? Is the "willing horse" to work himself to death merely for his own satisfaction, or are there other rewards? In the vast majority of cases the rewards are quickly forthcoming. The students honored by others, those who are elevated to the higher positions, have served their apprenticeships as humble helpers, aiding in forwarding the particular work to be done "with a willing heart and cheerful," learning the details of management in that quiet, thoroughgoing way which is the hallmark of dependability.

Few instances can be cited where a man was raised to power because of a single brilliant action without having served his probationary period as a subordinate. It simply is not being done.

THE COLONIAL REVIEW

The first literary supplement of the year appears this issue under its new name, THE COLONIAL REVIEW. This name was chosen in order to avoid the intellectual stigma attached to anything labeled "literary." Not that the supplement does not contain work of the highest literary quality, but that among typical students this term indicates a narrowness which is not at all characteristic of THE COLONIAL REVIEW. It contains articles and stories of popular interest.

In order that such a supplement be a success, it is necessary that students not only read it when published, but that they submit material for it. All forms of short stories, articles, sketches, and poetry are acceptable.

"CUTS" FOR HONOR STUDENTS

Long and loud has The Hatchet chanted its advocation of reasonable treatment of the students in the University in the matter of cuts from classes. The result last year was the determination of an equitable number of voluntary absences from classes. In the 1930 catalogue, therefore, may be found on page 86 the statement that occasional absences, not to exceed in number the semester hours of credit for the semester, will be automatically excused. Satisfaction was the predominant note distinguished in all quarters.

Further perusal of the section on attendance on page 86 discloses the following sentence: "——, while students on the honor roll are left upon their own responsibility." That this is meant to convey the definite fact that students on the honor roll are permitted unlimited cuts, provided all required work is completed, should be clear. The actions of certain professors refusing to admit these facts as printed in the University catalogue, induce us to inquire whether the students in this University must resort to concerted action in order to secure the rights due and granted them by George Washington University.

Letters printed here represent the opinions of the writers, not that of The Hatchet

To the Editor:

In a university of which over 50 per cent of the student body is composed of part-time employed students, the problem of financing one's way has considerable importance, and is a matter which should concern the university authorities. Undoubtedly, the tuition makes up the largest share of expenses, but that is a matter upon which a university cannot economize.

The next largest item is that of books and supplies, making up about one-sixth of the total. This one-sixth, which generally amounts to $15 to $30 a semester, could be reduced from 20 to 30 per cent through the medium of an intelligently organized cooperative, administered by the university. This is not a new idea. A great number of universities, realizing the need of convenience, quality and low price in books and class and laboratory supplies, have successfully operated such enterprises for many years. An outstanding example of this is the University of Wisconsin, which not only has a book and supply cooperative, but has restaurant and cafeteria cooperatives, and other types of cooperative enterprises.

It is common knowledge that book dealers not only make a 20 per cent to 30 per cent profit on books, but that it is the usual experience of students to encounter continued delays in their purchases. A conservative estimate of the amount that G. W. students spend on books in one year is $250,000; this on the basis of $40 each for 6,000 students. Estimating a low profit of 20 per cent, we see that the book dealers get an annual profit of a minimum of $50,000. This on books alone. Is that a sufficient argument? Add to it the uncertainty of obtaining books, and the inconvenience of repeated trips, and perhaps the argument is more convincing.

It would be particularly easy for our University to start a cooperative establishment. We already have a supply room in the basement of Stockton Hall, which offers at cost price a limited number of articles. What we actually advocate is merely the expansion of the present organization to supply every classroom need. There is no reason for a 20 per cent or more regular tribute to booksellers, our reward being the inconvenience of many trips for books which have not yet come in. The mark of a well organized university is the efficient manner in which its student body is served. Why not a cooperative store, conveniently situated on the campus, with books and supplies at publisher's prices?

STEEL under the microscope

Burnished mirror-bright, etched in an acid-bath, a shiny square of steel is placed in the projector microscope in the metallography room at Crane laboratories.

To the layman, the texture disclosed is surprising as the filigree design of magnified snowflakes. Sometimes it is like a relief map of mountain ranges, sometimes like finely veined marble, sometimes like cumulous clouds.

But to the scientist in metals who judges it with a connoisseur's eye, the surface tells a far wider story. It discloses coarse uneven or beautiful fine grains, tells of disproportions and proportions of constituents in the alloy, speaks volumes concerning malleability, ductility, hardness . . . gives a key to action of the metal in service, all based upon knowledge of the product.

Careful metallographic records of all metals used in Crane valves and fittings, painstaking microscopic examination of all new metals offered for possible use, are a part of the check and double check and triple check which is routine in Crane research and manufacturing.

The full story of Crane application of chemistry and science to metals is told in a fascinating book, "Pioneering in Science." It is a valuable reference book for students. Let us send you one.

33 to 0! A lacing, yes, but we have the consolation of knowing that Navy took one also, and that Catholic U. was nosed out by one point by Manhattan. We knew that Albright had a tough aggregation, but we didn't think they were that tough. According to all reports, this club at Reading is one of the best in Pennsylvania.

The boys are well primed for the annual classic with C. U. Navy may be our biggest game of the year, but, to quote Otts Kriemelmeyer, "We're going to win that game no matter what happens!" And it looks bad for the Cardinals, for they have won only one game so far this season, beating American U. by a top-heavy score. Their game Saturday, which they lost 7 to 6, showed a marked improvement, and brought home the old axiom that we know so well, "C. U. can never be taken lightly."

Sam Berkowitz says he has been on the under side the last three times he has met the Cardinals, and that he hopes to get a chance to even up the score Johnny Oliver rubbed in last year.

Incidentally, we have heard from outside sources that we were dropped from the 1931 Navy schedule merely because they considered us no longer a set-up or lay-over. From that, one is led to believe that Navy considers games with Southern Methodist, Maryland, G. W., Pennsylvania, and the Army too much for successive Saturdays. With the present condition of the Academy boys, we're inclined to agree with them. It is a shame, though, that we're not playing Navy again next year.

Jack Dishman voices his one regret in that the Colonials can't put out a program this Saturday, as the privilege rests with C. U.

Two more boys fired from the squad means a weakened team, at least, in reserve material. We stand pat with Big Jim Pixlee, though—discipline at any cost.

The Colonial Cubs may not be up to par, as a whole, with our 1929 frosh team, but they have some mighty good material in spots. Certain linemen and backs on the varsity are going to find it tough sledding next year. There ought to be a good fight for the center berth.

The Colonial Club says that it has been giving its annual victory dance after the C. U. game for some years now. It hopes to have a real victory dance this year.

For the edification of the student body, we'd like to explain the absence of the Sheriff of Slairdsville from the campus for the past two weeks. He wants to explain to his public that he has moved over to the law school. He still has a hankering to "go military" and our only weapon was moved from the registration to that department some time ago. He would also like to dispute the rumor floating around the campus that the old cannon was removed to be rejuvenated. It seems that it is still in its historic state. His one regret in its present location is that the girls on Twentieth Street are fewer in number than those on F Street. What they lack in numbers, they make up in looks, though, he says.

We would like to announce that a certain picture which was stolen from the walls of Joe Carter's room was found in St. Louis when the boys went through to Tulsa. It is now in the hands of its rightful owner.

It seems from the local papers that Len Walsh and one of the Cardinal coaches have a battle of wits every time they meet. A friendly battle, of course. Len, it is said, was taught his football by this coach, while in Minnesota, and is considered by the same a mere child. Walsh, quite naturally, gets mad and the battle starts. We wonder if the Cardinal coach was an All-American! At any rate, this column backs "Crucify" Walsh in anything he may care to do or bestow upon Catholic U. We would be especially thankful if he would make a grand start this Saturday.

This Cardinal team has had almost as bad luck this year as we had last year. It seems like a set-up. But some of us can remember back to 1927, when they had another bad year and yet came through and trimmed us. And that year we had a better team, according to certain grads, than we have now. But the situation is just like Dean Doyle has said repeatedly: "No matter who is the under-dog or who is favored to win this game, both teams are always inspired to greater heights and anything may happen." May we add, "It usually does." Catholic U. has nothing to lose and we still have the Navy to face. But this is going to be one time when that old jinx is going down the well known "long, long trail."

There is a rumor that the school will definitely start building a new gym in the spring. We can't vouch for its truthfulness.

For those who don't yet know, Coach Farrington's young brother is now attending school here and has won a regular berth on the frosh team. Bert has the makings of a good tackle.

The cheerleading team has promised some good entertainment between the halves this Friday night. Jerry Sickler, by himself, is enough to satisfy. He's going to tell all sorts of jokes, and—oh dear!—he's promised to do his famous Snake Dance. Well, I'll see you subsequently. It ought to be good.

PHI SIGS, SIGMA NU, S. A. E. LEAD FRAT CONTESTS

Interfraternity Basketers Are Developing Class As Season Advances

Standing of the Teams

League A			League B

D. T. D.	1	1	K. A.	0	1
S. X.	0	2	T. D. X.	0	1
Acacia	0	2

In the past week's Interfraternity basketball games Sigma Nu, S. A. E., and Phi Sigma Kappa showed their superiority over the other teams by easily defeating Delta Tau Delta, Sigma Chi and Acacia, respectively. The other two games were won by Kappa Sig and S. P. E. from K. A. and T. U. O., these games being more closely contested than the others.

The Sigma Nu's continued their excellent playing in their game with Delta Tau Delta, running up a score of 35 to the Delt's 16. Brown of Sigma Nu was by far the outstanding star of the game, counting 12 points for his team. Sinclair of Delta Tau Delta was the high point scorer for his outfit with 8 points to his credit. The Sigma Nu's have a powerful aggregation and will provide some very strong opposition in the future games.

The second game on Monday night, between Kappa Alpha and Kappa Sig, was one of the best games so far this season. The game, a closely contested one, was won by a margin of three free throws, the score being 21 to 18 in favor of Kappa Sigma. There were no particular outstanding stars in this game with the possible exception of Hayes, who counted six baskets for Kappa Alpha. Edwards, Kappa Sig, was the high point scorer for his team with five baskets.

S. A. E. Wins Easily

S. A. E. on Wednesday night ran up a score of 37 to the Sigma Chi's 13, winning the game with great ease. In the first and third quarters, S. A. E. had their second team in and it was during these two quarters that Sigma Chi got the majority of their points. Burgess of S. A. E. was the high point scorer of the game with a total of 14 points. Beekman did the best work for the Sigma Chi's, totalling six points.

T. U. O. gave the S. P. E.'s a fight for the game when they lost the contest by a score of 9 to 22. The game was a more interesting one than the score indicates. Ronald of S. P. E., although not counting for many points, is a splendid player and should be watched in ensuing games. The majority of the points of T. U. O. were obtained by some rather amazing shots from the center of the floor. S. P. E. has a very smooth-running combination and might be considered a dark horse in the race for the tournament cup.

Phi Sigma Kappa defeated Acacia in the only game played on Friday night by a score of 31 to 17. Only two regulars, Zahn and McClellan, played for the Phi Sigs, and scored 22 of the 31 points registered by the victors. The game was a mediocre exhibition at best, but had the Phi Sigs had their regulars it would have been a walk-away for them. The only time

Freshman Footballers Beaten By St. John's

Passing Offensive of Opponents Is Fatal to Colonial Cubs

In a game marked by the passing attack of both teams, the George Washington Cubs went down to defeat at the hands of the St. John's "B" squad team last Saturday at Annapolis. The final score was 20 to 7. The trick plays of the Johnnies were also greatly instrumental in vanquishing the young Colonials.

The home team scored shortly after the kick-off when MacCartee passed to Watson over the goal line. The Buff and Blue frosh scored in the second quarter to take a one-point lead. Two long passes were responsible for the Colonials' advance to a scoring position and Durbyshire plunged through the line for a touchdown. Carpenter placed-kicked the ball between the uprights for the extra point.

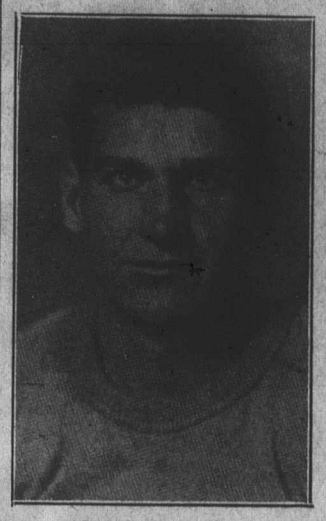

The passes of the Johnnies were largely responsible for their two touchdowns in the second half. Durbyshire played an excellent defensive game for the losers.

WHO'S WHO ON G. W.'s GRIDIRON

Wayne Chambers

Oklahoma claims as one of her favorite sons the rangy gentleman who holds down the center position on the George Washington line. Wayne Chambers, of Commerce, Oklahoma, is the man to whom we refer.

Fortune smiled favorably on George Washington when Wayne decided to enter our institution, and last year saw him enrolled as a freshman. Of course, it goes without saying that a man so accomplished along his line immediately went out for the frosh team.

His job as center is one that requires hard and exacting demands on his physical and mental being, and Wayne has certainly put forth all that could be asked of a man in his important role. Again quoting from "those who know," Chambers is said to be the most dependable man on George Washington's line.

Joe Carter

Joe Carter, G. W's left halfback, deserves much of the credit for our excellent showing on the football field this season. Joe is adept at plunging and running in offense and is ever alert while his team is on the defense.

Carter hails from the Mid-West, coming from Fulton, Mo. During his gridiron service, he was named as All-Missouri halfback on the mythical scholastic team.

Joe entered George Washington in the fall of 1929, and one of his first moves was to sign up for freshman football. After a successful season, Joe was all ready for varsity work, and was looked upon as a most helpful addition to the "Big Team." This fall Joe has played as regular halfback and has shown his ability in every one of G. W's games.

"Y. W." To Hold Meeting

The Y. W. C. A. will hold its first meeting of the year in the form of a luncheon Tuesday, November 25, at 12 o'clock, either in the gym or in its room on the second floor of the Women's Building. A charge of twenty-five cents will be made for luncheon. Everyone is cordially invited to attend and requested to bring any available old clothes to help the "Y's" annual helping of the poor.

G. W. Radio Club Extends Invitation To Membership

The George Washington University Radio Club issues an invitation to all who may be interested to attend meetings of the club or signify their interest in radio to either Howard Cole, chief operator, or Albert Small.

The equipment of the club has once again been entirely reconditioned. Materials given to the club by the Signal Corps have been used with great facility. Cole has been maintaining contact with the Radio Club of New York University for some time.

Phi Delta Phi Holds Smoker

Chief Justice Booth, of the United States Court of Claims, was the principal speaker at a smoker held November 11, by Phi Delta Phi, legal fraternity. Other speakers included Professors Collier and Hall, and Mat O'Brien, province president of the fraternity. About 50 people attended.

The Women's Riding Club went on its weekly ride from the Rock Creek Riding Academy on Saturday, November 15. The club is a new project at the University and has a promising future. There are no special requirements to join and membership is open to all women in the University.

Later in the year, members will go on all-day rides in the country. There will also be instruction in ring riding and hurdling. Those interested may sign up in the gym.

Miniature Football Is Vogue

And now it's pee-wee football!

An enterprising citizen of Colorado Springs, Colo., has constructed a half-size gridiron on which miniature teams can play. The field is just half the size of the regulation fields. It takes only five yards to make a first down. Goal posts are just as big and the white lines are just as dazzling, however, as on the larger fields.

A Tom Thumb league is being organized in Colorado Springs, with players averaging about 100 pounds.

The only thing about the game that is not diminutive is the name of the teams in the league. The Wolf Pack, Wildcats, and Roughnecks are already entered, with more junior elevens expected to enter during the season.

SEASON RECORD OF COLONIALS IS BEST SINCE 1928

Class of Opponents So Far This Season Has Not Been Very High

G. W'S RECORD

6	Rutgers	20
9	Delaware	9
27	Dickinson	6
6	Tulsa	14
86	New York Aggies	0
0	Albright	33
134		82

George Washington will go into its traditional game with Catholic University on Friday night with its best record since 1928, but not with one that appears overly-impressive when considering the class of opponents conquered by the Colonials. Although it has been returned victorious three times, has lost the same number of instances, and been tied once, the Buff and Blue eleven has not played on as high plane as has its rival at Brookland, and for that reason, cannot be considered as holding any edge over the Cardinals.

While C. U. has played three Class A opponents, G. W. has yet to meet a team of the first rank, and furthermore has yet to score over an eleven of Class B. All three of its defeats have been suffered at the hands of teams rating no better than a "B" standing, while its three victories have been scored over teams classed as low as "C."

Defeats Overshadow Victories

Although G. W. students have a right to feel proud over victories against Delaware, Dickinson, and the New York Aggies, there is little to be extolled when defeats at the hands of Rutgers, Tulsa, and Albright are remembered. None of the latter trio rank in the class of Boston College, Holy Cross, and Duquesne, all of whom were held to respectable scores by Catholic University.

In its two intersectional games, the George Washington record shows one tie and one defeat. South Dakota was tied 0-0 on a rainy night at Griffith Stadium, but few there were, who failed to see why the Colonials did not win, scoring chances being at their door on no less than three occasions. A fairly creditable game was put up at Tulsa, Okla., however, where the scrappy Buff and Blue eleven held a highly-touted Oklahoman host to a 14-6 score when considered to be four touchdowns weaker than the Westerners.

Albright Game Mars Record

The biggest mar on the record, however, came last Saturday when the team took a 33-0 licking at the hands of Albright. Here the team showed a lack of punch and unfortunately all of its bad points came to light in the same afternoon. Consequently, the boys were glad to finish the game. In favor of the team, however, it may be said that none of Albright's scores were made through the line, all of their touchdowns being the result of forward passes or long, sensational runs.

Rutgers, which was met in the first game of the season, escaped with a 20-6 victory at the expense of the Colonials, all of the 20 points coming in the first half before G. W's team hardly realized that it was playing its initial game of the season. Boasting its best team in six years, Rutgers was nevertheless outplayed by the Colonials for the remainder of the battle.

After the Rutgers game, the team kept its record on the right side of the ledger until the trip to Oklahoma to play Tulsa, two victories and a tie being the result of its efforts during the next three weeks. Delaware was repulsed, 9-6, after a particularly strenuous battle in which the Newark aggregation played far "over its head" in an effort to send our boys home defeated.

After the South Dakota deadlock, the team exhibited its power to home folks for the first time with a 27-6 win over Dickinson, which last year took the measure of the 1929 Buff and Blue team.

Probably the biggest "kick," George Washington fans have received in modern times, came on the night of November 7, when the team ran wild to set a new scoring record for teams of this University.

1930 VARSITY SQUAD

CUBS SPLIT EVEN SO FAR THIS YEAR

Defeat Massanutten and Citadel, Losing to Pitt and St. John's

The Colonial Cubs so far this season have split even, winning two games and losing two. The Pitt Frosh were the first to be met and they defeated the Freshmen, 19 to 6. The Cubs then journeyed to Massanutten to defeat the Massanutten Military Academy, 31 to 0. The Citadel Frosh of Charleston, S. C., were next met on the home field and defeated, 12 to 0. The last game was played with St. Johns "B" squad, which they lost by a score of 20 to 7.

The G. W. Freshman team entered the season against one of the strong freshman teams of the East, the Pittsburgh Frosh. They took their first defeat of the season at the hands of the Panthers, coming out at the small end of a 19-to-6 score. This game marked the initiation of the Cubs to the Pixlee system and, as they had only three weeks' practice before going into the game, they made a very good showing. The entire game was marked by fumbles [illegible] of the Cubs scoring. One feature of the game was the come-back of the G. W. team in the second half when they held the Panthers scoreless and put over their only score of the game. The inexperience of the freshmen showed in this game in that they lacked the necessary push to carry the ball over the line.

In the second game of the season, with Massanutten, the Cubs brought a victory home, and this without the aid of seven regulars who had been suspended just before the game. The game was not won with the ease which the score of 33 to 0 would indicate, but was a hard fight throughout. Leon Fouts, fullback for the Cubs, was the outstanding player, making steady gains, and playing an entire half with a broken nose.

Showing unusual power in their third game the Colonial Cubs defeated the powerful Citadel Freshmen by a score of 12 to 0. This game was marked by fast, hard playing on the part of both teams. Fouts, playing a superb game, was the constant worry of the opposing team. He played the entire game with a face guard to protect his broken nose, which hindered him not in the least as he made both touchdowns, and was a constant threat throughout the game. Derbyshire, of the Cubs, also stood out as he intercepted several passes to place the G. W. team in good positions. Florence and Nixon, linesmen for G. W., were outstanding.

In their last game played the Frosh lost to the St. Johns "B" squad gridders by a score of 20 to 7. This game, played during a steady drizzle, was marked with the passing attack of both of the teams. The team showed much better against the Johnnies than did the C. U. squad.

Colonial Cubs Meet C. U. Freshmen in Annual Battle

Game To Be At Griffith Stadium Saturday, November 22---Both Teams Strong---Contest Should Be One of Great Interest Owing To School Rivalry

Griffith Stadium will be the scene of the annual battle between the Colonial Cubs and the Catholic University Freshmen, on Saturday, November 22, at 2:30 p. m. This yearly contest is one which always draws a goodly crowd from both institutions.

The G. W. Frosh have been fairly successful in gaining an even break so far this season. They have been unfortunate in losing seven regulars from the squad, but regardless of this they have gone through the season with a fighting spirit that bids well to stand them in good stead the rest of the season.

Their last game was fought at Annapolis against the St. Johns "B" squad, the Cubs coming out the losers by the score of 20 to 7. This same team defeated the C. U. Frosh the week before by a 20-to-0 score.

C. U. Frosh Successful

The C. U. Frosh have had a successful season in winning two games, losing [illegible] and tieing with the eleven representing the Devitt Prep School. The Cardinals have one of their best freshman teams in years with a line averaging 190 pounds and a backfield of over 180 pounds. These facts, coupled with the rivalry between the two schools, should make it a game of keen interest.

Coach Sexton announces that all men who played in the Citadel game will be in the battle Saturday, with the hope of taking the Cardinals for a loss as they did last year.

C. U. FROSH TEAM PRIMED FOR G. W.

Cardinals Hope to Avenge Defeat of Last Year In Coming Game

The Cardinal freshmen have one of their best teams in years and have had a very successful season winning two games, losing one and tieing one. The supporters of the C. U. freshman team have high hopes that their eleven will avenge the humiliating defeat suffered by them last year at the hands of the Colonials.

In the first encounter of the season they took the Gonzaga eleven down to defeat by a score of 25-6. With the heavy forward wall which they present they make way for their heavy, fast backfield, which is a ground-gaining four of no mean ability.

The second game saw them emerge victorious again, this time against the National Training School. Here again their powerful team made their way to the opponents' goal by virtue of their driving backfield. Not only is their offense strong, but they present a most stubborn defense.

Tied By Devitt

In the Devitt Prep School the Cardinals found an opponent worthy of their best. This game ended in a nothing to nothing tie, but the C. U. team showed to be stronger by their more numerous gains both through the line and in the air.

The St. John's "B" squad was the first, and to date is the only one to defeat the Cardinals. They took the C. U. freshmen down the road to defeat to the tune of 20-0.

It seems, therefore, that the Catholic U. frosh team has been weakening in its last starts. It started out strongly, but the teams it defeated have not made any reputation for themselves. Gonzaga went down before Central, which in turn was beaten by Tech and Eastern. And National Training School is not able to boast a highly touted squad.

Devitt gave the C. U. frosh their first real test. St. John's then definitely proved that the Cardinals' frosh have a weakness. It is highly possible that this weakness may again make its appearance in the G. W. game.

May Be Inspired

One never can tell just what to expect when a Catholic U. team, even a frosh team, meets up with G. W., however. The Catholic frosh may be inspired to play their very best when opposed by a G. W. team that has not had a very successful season. G. W. always fears her ancient opponent and all Catholic teams instill fear in G. W. There is no doubt about it that the boys from Brookland are primed for this contest. They are going strong, prepping for this game, and will keep it up until the last whistle is blown.

C. U. GRID RECORD IS NOT INDICATIVE OF TEAM'S WORTH

Cardinals Have Gone Out of Class In Scheduling Varsity Contests

C. U.'S RECORD

7	Boston College	54
7	Franklin-Marshall	22
6	Holy Cross	27
6	Loyola (Md.)	20
0	Duquesne	13
6	New River State	20
60	American U.	0
6	Manhattan	7
98		163

Catholic University's 1930 grid record of only one victory as against seven defeats tends to conceal the fact that its eleven will be every bit as formidable as that of George Washington's when the rivals tackle each other on Friday night.

Although beaten seven times, C. U. has gone out of its class to play its games and its showing against every foe has been creditable and one that establishes it as exceptionally dangerous to the threats of George Washington. Of its seven defeats, three of C. U's conquerors are rated as Class A teams, and three of them as Class B elevens, showing that the Cardinals had nothing to be ashamed of in taking those lacings.

Improvement Shown

The marked improvement in the Brookland eleven since the beginning of the season, therefore, clearly indicates that the team which faces George Washington will be far different from that over which G. W. fans had been counting an easy victory. By rating the traditional rivals on the basis of the class of their opponents, C. U. can be counted upon as a favorite to cop. Boston College, Holy Cross, and Duquesne were the Class A teams to be met by C. U., and the fact that the Cardinals, after getting away to a disastrous start by receiving a 54-7 defeat at the hands of the first named, has held the other two opponents to closer scores in the following battles, augur ill for those who would regard the Brooklanders lightly.

After four straight defeats, C. U. went to Pittsburgh with little more than an even chance of holding Duquesne to a respectable score, yet played its best game of the year in holding the highly-touted Pennsylvanians to a 13-0 margin. Duquesne, which last year just nosed out one of the best C. U. teams in years by one touchdown, had nought but words of praise for the Cardinals, who fought them on such equal terms, after being specifically termed the "under-dog."

One Unexpected Defeat

Possibly the only unexpected disappointment received by C. U. fans this season was felt in the New River State game at the Brookland Stadium on November 7. It was the first time during the year that the Cardinals had met a team seemingly on equal terms with them, and hope was rampant at C. U. that the first victory might be annexed. But New River State, flashing unexpected power, again trampled the luckless Cards for a 20-6 verdict.

From then on, however, the tide has turned, and C. U. has been becoming more and more impressive. Its only victory was nevertheless sensational, American University of this city being routed in a 60-0 slaughter. While the Methodists possessed no "wonder" eleven this year, there was no reason to expect such a wholesale scoring game and those 60 points confirmed the growing belief that C. U. is "up and coming."

Manhattan Game Close

Then last Friday, the Cardinals traveled to New York, where they were defeated only by the margin of a drop-kick, of a Manhattan player sending the ball across the cross-bars after a touchdown which allowed that team to earn a 7-6 victory over the Brooklanders.

One victory in eight games appears to be a bad record, indeed, but when 72 of its 98 points have been made in the last three games, and when only 27 of its opponents' 163 points have been allowed in that same number of contests, there is no doubt but that the Cardinals have arrived at the point where they may be expected to play their best game of the season.

By noting class of teams played and resultant scores, G. W. seems "under-dog."

OPPONENTS MET BY RIVALS AND THEIR RATINGS:

Class A—C. U.: Holy Cross, Boston College, Duquesne.
G. W.: Has met no teams of this rank.
Class B—C. U.: Franklin-Marshall, New River State, Loyola.
G. W.: Rutgers, Tulsa, Albright.
Class C—C. U.: Manhattan.
G. W.: Delaware, South Dakota, Dickinson.
Class D—C. U.: American University.
G. W.: New York Aggies.

RECORDS OF G. W. AND C. U. AGAINST THESE FOES

SUMMARY

1. G. W. has played no Class A teams. C. U. has played three.
2. C. U.'s record against Class B teams is better than G. W.'s.
3. G. W.'s only advantage is found in victories over smaller teams.

Cardinals Lead G. W. By Big Margin In Games Won

G. W. Has Won Classic Only Twice In Last Ten Years

Only twice in the ten years that George Washington and Catholic University have met on the gridiron have the Colonials been returned victorious, C. U. having managed to produce an eleven superior to G. W's in the other eight instances. The last time that George Washington's colors floated over the Cardinals' was in 1924, when Johnny Loehler and Guy Hottel collaborated to lead G. W. to a 14-0 triumph.

For the last five years C. U. has taken the measure of the Buff and Blue, which means that no undergraduate now in the University has ever seen his Alma Mater win its traditional game. It will be to relieve this heart-sore condition that the 1930 aggregation will take the field Friday night, avowed to turn back the Brooklanders or die in the attempt.

The closest G. W. has come to trimming the Cardinals recently was in 1927, when a heart-breaking 27-21 contest was bagged by our rivals in what perhaps was the most momentous game ever staged between the foes. G. W., taking its famous "Iron Men" to the Brookland bowl, was established as the heavy pregame favorite, but "old man jinx" happened to be working overtime continually against the Buff and Blue.

George Washington's first victory in the series inaugurated in 1920, came in 1922, when the Colonials took a 14-7 victory after losing the two previous years, 13-0, and 19-7.

The record of the series follows:
1920—C. U., 13; G. W., 0.
1921—C. U., 19; G. W., 7.
1922—G. W., 14; C. U., 7.
1923—C. U., 27; G. W., 0.
1924—G. W., 14; C. U., 0.
1925—C. U., 20; G. W., 0.
1926—C. U., 17; G. W., 9.
1927—C. U., 27; G. W., 21.
1928—C. U., 40; G. W., 8.
1929—C. U., 48; G. W., 6.

WHO'S WHO ON THE CAMPUS

Roberta Wright

Roberta Wright, better known as "Bertie," is famous for her smile and those "Wright dimples." Seeing her, then, who would ever suspect her of being a shooting woman? If you have ever been down to the rifle range you will not only suspect but you will be convinced that she is a sharpshooter. Bertie never misses the bull's eye, so keep her smiling. She is captain of G. W's rifle team, which has won many national and international championships. She has been a squad member for the past three years and last year was captain too. Her early training in this art was received at Central High School, where she was a varsity girl and team captain there also. She sets a high standard for all rifle aspirants and is enviable not only for her ability but for her popularity.

Bertie has been a member of the W. A. A. for several years and this year is the president of that organization as well as a member of the board.

Last year she was a member of the Y. W. C. A. and was elected to the office of treasurer for this year, but had to resign the job because of so many other duties.

Scholarship attainments have brought Bertie high honors for last year she was one of three elected to Sphinx Honor Society, whose membership is restricted to seven girls with the highest scholarship and also extra-curricular activities. She also was chosen to be a member of the Hour Glass Society.

As a leader she is demonstrating again her ability as president of Sigma Kappa sorority.

WOMEN'S SPORTS WEEK UNDER WAY

Elmer Louis Kayser and Louise Omwake Address Pep Rally In Gymnasium On Monday

The women's sports week, now well under way, commenced on Monday in the gymnasium, where a very exciting pep rally was held. Enthusiastic co-eds representing all sports were present to cheer and back their teams. The two feature events of the day were talks by Louise Omwake and Dr. Elmer Louis Kayser. Miss Omwake is a former athlete of the University, and is now connected with the psychology department.

The games started Tuesday, and included interclass competition in hockey, soccer, tennis and archery. To the team winning the hockey tournament a perpetual cup will be awarded.

On completion of the tournaments an honorary varsity team will be chosen in each sport, which will include the girls most skilled in their particular sport. Letters will be awarded to this group. This team as such will play no competitive games.

To bring the week to a close George Washington co-eds will act as hostesses to American University co-eds on Saturday afternoon at an interclass sports day, to be held on the ellipse.

The schedule of events for the week is as follows:

TUES., NOV. 18—1:20 P. M.
Soccer—Frosh vs. Juniors.
Hockey—Sophomores vs. Frosh.
Archery—Sophomores vs. Frosh.
Tennis—Frosh vs. Sophomores.

WED., NOV. 19—1:20 P. M.

Assistant Dean of Medical School Is Dr. Jos. H. Roe

Dr. Joseph H. Roe was appointed to the office of assistant dean of the Medical School this fall. His activities are primarily concerned with the freshman and sophomore classes.

Dr. Roe is professor of biochemistry. He received the Degree of Doctor of Philosophy in George Washington University in 1923. Dr. Roe is also a graduate of Roanoke College, where he received his A. B. in 1916, and of Princeton, where he received his M. A. in 1917. Dr. Roe is an outstanding figure in biochemistry, and has written a textbook, "The Principles of Biochemistry," as well as several research articles, among which was his well known article on blood calcium. His articles have appeared in many leading journals.

DEBATING SEASON OPENS AGAINST SCOTTISH TEAMS

firmative, John M. MacCormick, fiery nationalist of Glasgow University, painted the present-day university man as a superstition-ridden creature whose chief delights are football and parties. The type of men and women the universities are producing are incapable of leading humanity forward, he asserted. He deplored the prevalence of the university professor who retails stale lectures, and, equally, the acceptance of these lectures by the student without question. "Education should make one question all things," he said. "The liberal arts college produces polite and passive citizens, and the vocational school supplies them with a means of livelihood which will keep them quiet for the rest of their lives," he complained.

The final speaker for George Washington, Hearst R. Duncan, made ardent defense of democracy in education. "The republic is safe so long as grass does not grow on the path that leads from the farmhouse to the university," he declared. Most of the great creative minds have sprung from the masses, he pointed out, asserting that it is therefore the duty of the university to attract the masses and to select therefrom those who should be trained to become leaders of thought.

The real functions of the university, Duncan said, are to adjust the student to the environment in which he must live, which is accomplished through the liberal arts school, and to train the student in the particular vocational field which he selects, which is accomplished through the professional school. Research should be left to the graduate school, and since, by its very nature, it is voluntary, inspirational and highly individual, there is no necessity that it be made the primary function of the university, he declared.

Rebuttals Are Vigorous

In rebuttal, each side attacked the arguments of the opposing team in such keen and vigorous fashion as to leave the audience in a quandary as to the merits of the question. However, they were saved the necessity of casting a ballot as, in accordance with the custom of the Scottish team, no decision was rendered.

In closing the debate President Marvin stressed the international character of The George Washington University which, he stated, enrolls a greater number of students from foreign lands than all universities south of New York and east of the Appalachians, combined.

Phi Eta Sigma Men!

The meeting of Phi Eta Sigma scheduled for Friday night will be held instead on Thursday night, November 20, at 8 p. m., in the men's lounge of Stockton Hall.

This change has been made in order to avoid conflict with the G. W.-C. U. football game. All members are urged to attend, as some very important matters will be discussed.

Doctors Discuss Disease Before Medical Society

Four very interesting papers on a number of heart diseases were read and discussed Saturday night at the Medical Society meeting. Among the diseases discussed were: Coronary Thrombosis, by Dr. Thomas A. Claytor. In this paper Dr. Claytor considered the incidence, symptomatology, diagnosis and treatment of Coronary Thrombosis.

Dr. Wallace M. Yater read a paper on the Modern Treatment of Rheumatic Heart Disease. Dr. Yater is professor of medicine at Georgetown University.

Angina Pectoris, particularly its incidence and symptomatology, was taken up by Dr. Bloedorn.

Dr. Thomas Lee read an interesting paper entitled, "Some Clinical Aspects of Auricular Fibrillation."

The papers were discussed by Dr. Leslie T. Gager, Dr. William J. Mallory and Dr. Charles R. L. Halley.

Physics Club Hears Speech On New Scientific Advance

Dr. Ellis Haworth addressed the Physics Club of George Washington University at its third meeting of the year, on November 17. Dr. Haworth, a teacher at Eastern High School, spoke on "Heisenberg's Uncertainty Principle." This principle is said to be the greatest contribution to science and philosophy since the announcement of the Einstein theory of relativity.

At a previous meeting of the Physics Club, James L. Thomas, of the Bureau of Standards, an instructor at G. W. U., told of his new design for a "precision resistance standard."

Intramural Position Open

The position of intramural manager of the Women's Athletic Association is open. Written application should be made to Miss Atwell at the physical education department office at once. This position is open only to juniors and seniors and offers an excellent opportunity to a student who is not actively interested in athletics.

Prominent University Men Approve Health Movement

Marvin And Wilbur Commend Purpose of National Health Week

President Marvin and Provost Wilbur have declared themselves heartily in favor of G. W's participation in the annual National Health Week, November 18 to 25, which is supported by the Women's Athletic Association. Literature concerning balanced diets, desirable sports, and beneficial exercises is being distributed throughout the University during this week.

Although he does not favor any one sport to the extent of making it a hobby, President Marvin is very much interested in athletics of every kind. He has done much to further the development of the athletic program of G. W., and has shown how firmly he believes that sports should be given a place in the life of the students.

Provost Wilbur, when approached on the subject, strongly advocated the cultivation of a liking for one sport. Being himself an enthusiast of yachting and sailing, he has in past years devoted his summer vacations to these sports; he feels that the physical benefits derived therefrom have helped him immensely in carrying on his work during the winter months. He considers exercise of some kind essential to a well-balanced life.

The Provost recalled an address which Charles Herbert Stockton, a former president of the University, gave to a graduating class of George Washington several years ago, emphasizing the importance of having an avocation as well as a vocation, and stating that a good avocation, by keeping us fit and in the prime of health, enables us to pursue our vocations with greater zeal and better results.

The object of the National Health Week drive on the campus is to educate the students as to healthy living and the importance of a well-balanced life. The committee in charge of the movement is headed by Edith Brookhart, and consists of Marion Fick, Anna Bonner, Jane Hill, and Lou James.

Interfraternity Dance

The Interfraternity Council announces an open dance in Corcoran Hall on Friday, November 28, from 9 to 12 p. m. Strickland's Orchestra will furnish the music. Admission will be $1.00, couple or stag.

Dr. Hunter Now Acting Dean of Medical School

Dr. Oscar Benwood Hunter, since the illness of Dr. William C. Borden, has been acting dean of the Medical School. Dr. Hunter is professor of pathology and bacteriology. He is also pathologist of the G. W. hospital and dispensary, consulting pathologist for Sibley Memorial Hospital and Montgomery County General Hospital, and professor of bacteriology and pathology for the Central Training School for Nurses. He is a subsidiary examiner of The National Board of Medical Examiners, and chairman of the Board of Osteopathy and Medicine of Washington, D. C.

Dr. Hunter is a member of the medical societies of Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia, Washington Medical Surgical Society, and numerous national medical associations. He is a fellow of the American Medical Association and American College of Physicians.

Dr. Hunter graduated from the George Washington University School of Medicine in 1912 and received his A. B. and M. A. in 1916 and 1917. He is the author of many articles in the leading local and national medical journals.

Liberal Club Will Gather Wednesday, November 26

On Wednesday, November 26, Santiago Iglesias, general secretary of the Pan-American Federation of Labor, will speak before the Liberal Club on "The Labor Movement in Spanish America." The meeting will begin at 8:15, in Corcoran Hall, Room 17.

Former President Collier Spends Much Time Abroad

Dr. William Miller Collier, former President of The George Washington University, has been traveling almost constantly since his resignation as Ambassador to Chile. He spent last winter in an extended trip to Egypt, Ceylon, Sumatra, Java, Bali and British Malay.

This year he has been traveling in Europe, and is now planning another trip to the Far East. He expects to leave London about New Year's Day, to go via Suez to the Philippines, China and Japan, spending many months in those countries. Thence he will cross the Pacific to California, making a few weeks' stop in Hawaii.

Architectural Student Here Wins Prize for Art Design

Taylor Simmons, a sophomore in the Architectural School here, has been awarded second prize for 1930 by the Beaux Arts Institute of Design. This institution, with which are accredited about 150 of the leading architectural schools in the United States, annually offers five prizes for original student designs. Mr. Simmons' prize winning entry is in the form of a modernistic dance program entitled "Fete Moderne." The five winning designs will go to the various associated schools for exhibition.

At present there is an exhibition on the first floor of the Architectural Building, of twenty-five problems made last year by students in associated Beaux Arts schools.

9 MILLION A DAY—IT HAD TO BE GOOD TO GET WHERE IT IS

Strong Albright Team Downs Colonials, 33-0

Latter Team Is Dazzled By Powerful Aerial and Running Attack

Sad news was heard by George Washington University students last Saturday night when reports from Reading, Pa., drifted in to the effect that the G. W. football team had taken an unexpected but decisive beating, 33-0, at the hands of Albright College. Reports of a strong eleven in the Pennsylvania town seemed to be justified, but from those who saw the game, the Buff and Blue eleven had no license to be defeated by such a score.

Coach Pixlee, on his return, stated that it was the worst beating a team of his had ever taken and the only game he had ever seen any of his football players wish to be finished. It seemed as if everything wrong in the way of football was loosed by the eleven last Saturday, but for the optimists, it is to be hoped that everything bad was gotten out of the players' systems.

A dazzling aerial attack by Albright baffled the team early in the game and sensational runs caught them unawares and accounted for the majority of the opponents' 33 points. Colonials were caught off their guard so often and found asleep that they appeared an entirely different eleven from that which ran roughshod over the New York Aggies here the week before.

G. W. Defense Wilts

After holding Albright to a 0-0 score in the first quarter, the Buff and Blue defense wilted and two touchdowns in the second quarter left them on the short end of a 13-0 score at the intermission. Two more 6-pointers raised the Albright total to 26 at the start of the final period, and in calling it a day, the home gang registered its final score in the last quarter.

G. W. never did get going and injuries forced out three of its four backfield aces. Joe Carter suffered a dislocated shoulder, Billy Wells wrenched his neck, and Lee Carlin sprained an ankle for the second time this season. Reserves who replaced them were never able to penetrate the Albright defense, and for the second time this season, the team was forced to leave the field scoreless.

PHI SIGS, SIGMA NU, S. P. E. LEAD IN FRAT BASKETBALL

the victors showed their mastery was in the opening minutes of the game, after which Acacia battled them spiritedly throughout the game. Burton of the Acacians did some excellent playing for his team, and rang up 8 of the 17 points scored by it.

Leaders to Meet

In League A, Sigma Nu and Phi Sigma Kappa appear to have the strongest aggregations, both having won two games and lost none. These two teams will meet on Monday, November 24, in what will probably be the deciding game of the series, and a good brand of basketball is expected. However, S. A. E. has a strong and smooth-working outfit, and might provide some upsets before the final whistle blows.

Sigma Phi Epsilon has won two contests and lost none, which gives them the best record in League B. However, it is difficult to determine with any degree of accuracy the standing of the teams in this league as some of them have only played one game.

Work of Education School Embraces Broader Aspect

Activities Directed Toward Preparation of Undergraduates, Advanced Training for Teachers, and Cooperation With Educational Movements

The School of Education of The George Washington University, under the direction of Dean William Carl Ruediger, directs its activities toward three main objectives:

1. Preparation of undergraduate students of the University who wish to enter high school teaching.
2. Supplying advanced training for teachers already in service. In this connection the School of Education cooperates with the District school system and schools of the territory surrounding Washington, in offering courses to supply their special needs.
3. Cooperation with civic educational movements.

District Schools Assist

Basic courses in Education and in the Technique of Teaching fulfill the first objective. The School of Education is fortunate in receiving the cooperation of the District school system in arranging opportunities for actual class room experience. Under the direction of Professor J. Orin Powers, students are engaged in observation and practice teaching in the various junior and senior high schools of Washington. Each student teaches in his major subject under the guidance and direction of an experienced teacher.

In supplying advanced training for teachers already in service, the School of Education aims to provide courses which are timely, and which fill the particular needs of the public schools. For example, to meet the need arising from the reorganization of the elementary schools on a six-year basis and the establishment of junior high schools, the School of Education is offering a wide range of courses on Elementary Schools and on the Junior High School. Character education, a phase which is receiving much attention from educational bodies and in educational literature, is made the basis of a course which is given under the direction of Miss Jessie LaSalle, assistant superintendent of schools in charge of research. The response to this opportunity for study in a field of timely interest is indicated by the fact that approximately 250 have registered for the course.

Advanced work for teachers of commercial education is being given under the direction of Mr. Earl W. Barnhart, of the Federal Board for Vocational Education. The research work of graduate students who are engaged in studies involving data from the local school system is under the personal direction of Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools.

Graduate Activity Expands

Great expansion is noted in the graduate work of the School of Education. The student body in the graduate division has doubled in the last three years, and the number of strictly graduate courses offered has been trebled. Candidates for the degree of doctor of philosophy number 28, and for the master's degree in Education, 112.

In its cooperation with civic educational movements, the School of Education is offering this year courses an adult education under Mr. L. R. Alderman, of the United States Office of Education, and on the parent-teacher movement under Mrs. A. C. Watkins, executive secretary of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

The Department of Home Economics and the Departments of Physical Education for Men and for Women, are developing teacher training in their particular fields.

Home Ec Aids Bartsch

The Home Economics Department, of which Professor Frances Kirkpatrick is the executive officer, offers not only basic courses in food preparation and clothing construction, but advanced courses in the science of nutrition and dietetics. An interesting project of the home economics students is the solution of the entire dietary problem faced by Dr. Paul Bartsch in the West Indian Zoological expedition undertaken by him last summer. A complete dietary system for a four-month cruise beyond the reach of markets was worked out by the students and staff and used by Dr. Bartsch with entire satisfaction.

This year the curricula of the Department of Physical Education for Men, and of the Department of Physical Education for Women have been expanded to include all courses requisite to the training of teachers of physical education.

In the work of teacher training the School of Education of The George Washington University has particular advantages afforded by the proximity of the library of the Bureau of Education, the Library of Congress, the Public Library, and the research departments of private foundations such as the American Council on Education and the National Education Association. The library of the Bureau of Education and the Library of Congress house more material on the history of American education than has been brought together in any other place in America.

Child Development Studied

The George Washington University School of Education also enjoys the cooperation of the Washington Child Research Center, which is doing notable work in the study of the preschool child. Courses in Child Development are given by Dr. Mandel Sherman, director of the Center, and by Dr. James A. Hicks, both of whom are on the teaching staff of the School of Education.

The Summer Sessions of the University, which each year schedule a wide field of courses for teachers, this year will emphasize the Social Sciences and methods of teaching these subjects. The staff of the Summer Sessions will include a number of visiting professors who are eminent in education.

WOMEN ARE HONORED BY JOURNALISTIC FRAT

Wig staff, she has won many laurels.

The features section of the 1930 Cherry Tree was Edward Norris' chief responsibility last year, and previous to that she served several years in other positions on that publication.

Verna Parsons served on The Hatchet as women's sports editor and on The Cherry Tree in the assistant sports and law editorships. Verna is in law school this year.

Associate Editor

Harriette Rissler held the position of assignment editor of The Hatchet last year and earned her position as one of the associate editors of this year's paper. She was dramatic editor of The Cherry Tree for 1930, and one of the editors of the Handbook for 1930-31.

The editor of The Cherry Tree, Dorothy Ruth, held previous to 1930 almost every post leading up to that position. She has also written for The Hatchet.

Immediately after the banquet initiation ceremonies were held, and officers were elected for the coming year, as follows: president, Dorothy Albert; vice president, Miriam De Haas; secretary, Maude Hudson; treasurer, Ruth Markwood.

Newman Club Meeting

The Newman Club will meet Thursday, November 20, at 8:30 p. m., in Room 29, Corcoran Hall. As usual, a prominent speaker will address the club. All Catholics in the University are urged to attend.

Help G. W. Nursery

The Women's Board of the George Washington University Hospital invites G. W. students to a Thanksgiving tea at the residence of Mrs. William H. Hill, 2400 Sixteenth Street, Friday, November 21, 4 to 6 o'clock, for the nursery needs of the hospital. The Tuesday Evening Chorus Club will render a program at 4:45.

Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor is president of the board; Mrs. Eugene Byrnes, chairman of the entertainment committee, and Mrs. Arnold McNitt, chairman of the nursery committee.

The nursery needs are: Cotton blankets, 36x36; pillows, 8x12; pillow slips, 16x16; cash donations to purchase infants' shirts of a uniform style.

U. S. Commissioner of Education To Be Principal Speaker

The District of Columbia Education Association, of which Professor Powers is president, has obtained two notable speakers for its next meeting, to be held November 21, at 8 o'clock, in the auditorium of the Interior Building. The speakers will be the Honorable William John Cooper, Commissioner of Education in the United States, and Miss Bess Goodykuntz, the assistant United States Commissioner of Education.

At the last meeting of the association, Professor Powers presented the teachers with a questionnaire which he compiled and the results of which were very promising, showing a growing interest in the association and an increase in its membership under the leadership of the new president. Among the questions under consideration was that of the kind of meeting and the members decided by a vote of 57 in favor, of having professional meetings. They also voted to have every fourth meeting a social meeting, also that the meetings were to be inspirational. The final question was a decision in favor of having noon-day luncheons as the best time and manner of meeting.

International Relations Club To Hold Meeting

Dr. Siqueria Coutinho, professor of Portuguese at Georgetown University, and counselor of the Portuguese legation in Washington, will speak at the meeting of the International Relations Club, which will be held early in December.

Dr. Coutinho has done considerable work in international relations and especially in the field of South American politics. He will speak on the political situation in Brazil. An open forum discussion will follow the lecture. The exact date of the meeting will be announced next week.

Hatchet Staff Notice

There will be an important meeting of The Hatchet staff in Room 29, Corcoran Hall, on Wednesday, November 26, at 7:30 p. m. All editors, assistants, reporters and those out for positions as reporters must be present.

VARSITY TO MEET C. U. FOR ANNUAL GRIDIRON CLASSIC

1927. But against Catholic University, they failed, and here is the current eleven's opportunity to improve on the team's showing in '27.

That their task will be hard is evidenced by a glance at C. U.'s record. While undoubtedly up against harder teams, the Cardinals have not regarded their season as successful in view of the fact that only one victory has been recorded by them. To beat G. W., therefore, would make their season a pronounced success, and in that frame of mind they should be hard to stop. No Hatchetite has to be told of C. U.'s fighting spirit against G. W. and the Brooklanders will certainly be in no mood for a tea-party on Friday night. They are rarin' to "get at" G. W. and to turn a dismal season into one of joy.

Neutral Field Selected

G. W. this year should be favored in two respects. For the first time in the history of the series, the game will be played on a neutral field, the Brookland bowl having hitherto been the scene of battle. And in the second place, it will be a brand-new bunch of G. W. football players who will face G. W.'s old foes. Possibly a jinx has worked on G. W. players of the past who have been on squads trimmed by the Catholics, but only one of the current bunch of gridmen has ever faced C. U. before. Most of this year's team trounced the C. U. frosh last year and have no fear of jinxes.

And surely Sammy Berkowitz, the only remaining member of last year's varsity, will not allow any mental hazard to overcome his desire to help a cause unanswered for lo, these many years.

With the exception of the above-mentioned injured members of the squad, the boys appear fit. Lyle Sturtevant and Fred Mulvey, stellar ends, are both ready to return to action after enforced idleness due to boils and a shoulder injury, respectively. "Bugs" Bagranoff should also be ready to start, which leaves the line in tip-top shape.

Lehigh Chaplain to Speak At Chapel On November 21

The last chapel before Thanksgiving will be held on Friday, November 21, at 12:10. Dean Gateson, the chaplain of Lehigh University, will speak. Freshman women will attend this chapel on November 21 instead of assembly on Wednesday, November 26. There will be no assembly on Wednesday, Nov. 26, but freshmen women will take their regular assigned seats at chapel on Friday.

Scarab Temple to Show Work At Convention of Architectural Fraternity

The George Washington temple of Scarab will be represented by a set of eighty assorted sketches and water colors at the annual convention to be held at the University of Virginia the latter part of this month.

Scarab, a national honorary architectural fraternity, ranks high in art as well as architectural circles, and its chapters, known as temples, are spread throughout the nation. Wallace Lynn will go to Charlottesville as representative of the George Washington chapter. All others interested are invited to visit the convention.
